Courses offered by the Department of Religious Studies have the subject code RELIGST, and are listed in the "Religious Studies (RELIGST) Courses" section of this bulletin.

MISSION OF THE DEPARTMENT

The field of Religious Studies brings a variety of disciplinary perspectives to bear on the phenomena of religion for the purpose of understanding and interpreting the history, literature, thought, social structures, and practices of the religious traditions of the world. Comprised of a dozen regular faculty with particular strengths in the study of Buddhism, Christianity, Islam, and Judaism, it enrolls about thirty graduate students (mostly doctoral) and roughly as many undergraduate majors, minors, and joint majors.

Religious Studies works closely with several related programs at Stanford: the Department of Philosophy, with which it offers a joint undergraduate major; the Stanford Center for Buddhist Studies; the Taube Center for Jewish Studies; the Abbasi Program in Islamic Studies; the Program in Medieval studies; Interdisciplinary Studies in Humanities, with which the department offers a graduate degree; and the Asian Religions and Cultures Initiative.

While some undergraduates continue their study of religion in a graduate or professional program, most pursue meaningful and successful careers in business, government, the nonprofit sector, and medicine. In this respect, Religious Studies is an ideal interdisciplinary major in the liberal arts. Graduates of the department's doctoral program pursue academic careers and are routinely placed in the best universities and colleges in the country.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAMS IN RELIGIOUS STUDIES

The department offers a Bachelor of Arts major and minor in Religious Studies and a joint major with the Philosophy department in Religious Studies and Philosophy. Undergraduate courses in Religious Studies are designed to engage students existentially and to assist them in thinking about intellectual, ethical, and sociopolitical issues in the world's religions. The department's faculty seek to provide tools for understanding the complex encounters among religious ideas, practices, and communities, and the past and present cultures which have shaped and been shaped by religion. Courses therefore expose students to: leading concepts in the field of religious studies such as god(s), sacrifice, ritual, scripture, prophecy, and priesthood; approaches developed over the past century, including the anthropological, historical, psychological, philosophical, and phenomenological, that open religion to closer inspection and analysis; and major questions, themes, developments, features, and figures in the world's religious traditions. The department encourages and supports the acquisition of languages needed for engagement with sacred texts and interpretive traditions as well as study abroad at Stanford's overseas centers where religions can be observed and experienced in the culture of their origin.

BACHELOR OF ARTS IN RELIGIOUS STUDIES

SUGGESTED PREPARATION FOR THE MAJOR

There is no prescribed route or prerequisite to the major; students typically find themselves majoring after taking courses in the department and becoming acquainted with department faculty. Students contemplating the major or joint major are invited to consult with the Director of Undergraduate Studies, Brent Sockness, in 70-72B. Sunny Toy, the undergraduate student services associate in 71K, can field questions regarding the declaration procedure within the department.

DEGREE REQUIREMENTS

The curriculum for majors is designed to move students sequentially from foundational courses, through deeper investigations, culminating in integrative research courses. Thus, the introductory sequence is designed to lead to courses which build on this foundation with topics including: particular traditions such as Judaism or Buddhism; comparative studies such as nonviolence in Hinduism and Buddhism, or Muslim and Christian interpretations of scripture; specific topics such as mysticism, gender and religion, or theodicy; and distinctive approaches such as the philosophy of religion or ritual studies. Majors complete their careers with integrative courses that afford opportunity for research and consolidation of the knowledge and skills gained earlier.

A Bachelor of Arts in Religious Studies requires 60 units of course work. At least 44 units are taken in courses numbered above 100. Ten units out of the 60 may be taken for the grade of 'CR/NC.'

Required Courses—

At least 8 of the 60 units must be courses at the introductory level. Students may satisfy this requirement by taking either:

- a. IHUM 68A,B. Performing Religion (Winter/Spring sequence), or
- b. one course in each of the following categories: introduction to religious traditions (courses numbered 11-50) and academic approaches to the study of religion (courses numbered 51-99). In consultation with the Undergraduate Director, one Stanford Introductory Seminar in Religious Studies may be applied to this introductory requirement.
1. At least 29 units are to be taken in intermediate lecture and seminar courses numbered 100-289. Of these, at least two seminars are required from courses numbered above 200. Language courses relating to students' study of religion within the department, such as Arabic, biblical Hebrew, New Testament Greek, Chinese, or Japanese, but not counted towards the University language requirement may, with departmental approval, be counted among these 29 units.
2. 15 units in integrative courses:
 - c. Majors' Seminar: RELIGST 290, Theories of Religion (5 units; Winter Quarter of junior year; fulfills WIM requirement; letter grade only)
 - d. Senior Essay or Honors Thesis Research: RELIGST 297 (3-5 units; minimum 5 units; up to 10 units over two quarters; graded 'N' until completion of essay or thesis)
 - e. Senior Majors' Colloquium: RELIGST 298 (5 units; Spring Quarter; grading option S/NC)
 - f. completion of either a senior essay or honors thesis. See below concerning the difference between these options.
3. Each student, in consultation with his/her adviser, works out a focus of study centering either on a particular religious tradition or on a theme or problem which cuts across traditions such as ritual, ethics, scripture, or gender.
4. Students focusing on one religious tradition must take at least 8 units in one or more religious traditions outside their concentration.

SENIOR ESSAY

A 25-30 page essay on a topic chosen by the student and approved by the adviser upon receipt of a student's proposal by the end of the third quarter prior to expected graduation. The character and content of the essay, which is meant to allow the student to call into play knowledge and skills learned in the course of the major, may take several forms. For example, a student may return to a subject studied earlier but now pursued with more questions or from a new perspective, or research a recent or new topic of interest in the field, or offer a carefully framed critical assessment of what has been learned in the major based on review of influential sources, theories, and methods of studying religion. The senior essay is read and graded by the student's adviser and one other member of the Religious Studies faculty.

HONORS THESIS

A 40-80 page research paper on a topic chosen by the student and approved by the adviser upon receipt of a proposal in the fourth quarter prior to expected graduation. The paper, supported by mastery of primary and secondary scholarship, advances a well-reasoned, supportable thesis. Writers of honors theses must have a grade point average (GPA) of 3.5 in Religious Studies courses, and at least 3.2 overall, and are expected to have already demonstrated success in writing research papers. The honors thesis is read and graded by the student's adviser and one other member of the Religious Studies faculty. Theses earning a grade of 'B+' or above receive honors.

Major in Religious Studies and Philosophy

The departments of Religious Studies and Philosophy jointly nominate for the B.A. in Religious Studies and Philosophy those students who have completed a major in the two disciplines. See a description of this joint major under the "Philosophy" section of this bulletin, or in the guidelines available from the undergraduate director of either department.

Minor in Religious Studies

A Religious Studies minor is a complement to many majors throughout the University. Students contemplating the minor are invited to consult with the Director of Undergraduate Studies, Brent Sockness, in 70-72B. Sunny Toy, the undergraduate student services associate in room 71K, can field questions regarding the declaration procedure within the department.

Requirements—A minor in Religious Studies requires a minimum of 30 graded units. Students are encouraged to focus their program of study either in a religious tradition or in a theme that cuts across traditions. In consultation with their advisers, students may design the minor in Religious Studies to complement their major. The minor must be declared no later than the last day of the quarter, two quarters before degree conferral.

Required Courses for the Minor—

Two introductory courses. To satisfy this requirement, students take either:

- g. IHUM 68A,B. Performing Religion (Winter/Spring sequence), or
 - h. one course in each of the following categories: introduction to religious traditions (courses numbered 11-50) and academic approaches to the study of religion (courses numbered 51-99). In consultation with the Undergraduate Director, one Stanford Introductory Seminar in Religious Studies may be applied to this introductory requirement.
5. At least 22 units in courses at the intermediate and advanced level (above 100), including at least one 200-level seminar.
 6. Diversity requirement: Students may not take all courses in one religious tradition.
 7. One course in directed reading (RELIGST 199) may count towards the minor.
 8. With approval of the Undergraduate Director, one language course related to the student's program of study (such as Arabic, biblical Hebrew, New Testament Greek, Chinese, or Japanese), but not counted towards the University language requirement, may be counted toward the minor.
 9. Courses from other departments may not count towards the minor. (Exception: language courses covered by point 5.)

GRADUATE PROGRAMS IN RELIGIOUS STUDIES

The graduate mission of the department is to provide students with an interdisciplinary setting of study within which to focus on their respective areas of specialization. The department offers an M.A. and a Ph.D. degree in Religious Studies.

MASTER OF ARTS IN RELIGIOUS STUDIES

University requirements for the M.A. are described in the "Graduate Degrees" section of this bulletin. The department offers a one year terminal M.A. program. Students can also earn their M.A. degree as part of their coterminal degree program. The M.A. program serves two groups of students: a) those who wish to prepare for a doctoral program in religious studies and b) those who wish to further deepen their knowledge in an area in which they have acquired some expertise during their undergraduate work.

The following requirements are in addition to the University's basic requirements.

The student completes at least 45 units of graduate work at Stanford beyond the B.A. degree, including either the RELIGST 290, Majors Seminar, or 304A or B, Theories and Methods, with consent of instructor. Residence may be completed by three quarters of full-time work or the equivalent.

The student's plan of courses is subject to approval by the Graduate Director. No field of specialization is expected but students may focus work in particular areas. Advanced and graduate courses in other departments may be taken (see below). No thesis is required; a thesis, if elected, may count for as many as 9 units.

Each student demonstrates reading knowledge of at least one foreign language.

The following courses from other departments may be used in fulfillment of degree requirements. The student adviser can approve additional courses.

CLASSGEN 18. Greek Mythology

POLISCI 149S. Islam and the West

REES 130/330. With God in Russia: Orthodox Christianity in the 19th and 20th Centuries

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY IN RELIGIOUS STUDIES

University requirements for the Ph.D. are described in the "Graduate Degrees" section of this bulletin. The Ph.D. in Religious Studies signifies special knowledge of an interdisciplinary field of study and potential mastery of an area of specialization within it. The faculty of the department have established certain fields of study in which the department's strengths and those of other Stanford departments cohere. They are: East Asian religions, Christianity, Islam, Judaism, religious ethics, and modern Western religious thought. Students who wish to specialize in other fields must obtain early approval by the faculty. Each of these areas of specialization follows a shared structure of study.

The following requirements are in addition to the University's basic requirements.

Residence—Each student completes three years (nine quarters) of full-time study, or the equivalent, in graduate work beyond the B.A. degree, and a minimum of 135 units of graduate course work (excluding the dissertation).

10. Required Courses—The 135 units of graduate course work must include the following:

RELIGST 304A. Theories and Methods

RELIGST 304B. Theories and Methods

RELIGST 391. Pedagogy (two quarters)

RELIGST 399. Recent Works in Religious Studies

The remainder of the course work is individually designed, in consultation with the adviser.

11. Languages—Each student demonstrates a reading knowledge of two foreign languages, including French or German. One of those language requirements should be fulfilled by the time of advancing to candidacy at the end of the second year. Competence in the second language must be demonstrated at the time of the qualifying examination.

Each student also demonstrates reading knowledge of other ancient or modern languages necessary for the field of study, area of specialization, and dissertation topic.

12. Candidacy—At the end of each academic year, the department's faculty recommend second-year students for candidacy on the basis of all relevant information, and especially on the student's candidacy dossier which includes the approved declaration of an area of specialization, certification for one foreign language, and two substantial papers written for courses during the previous two years. Students are required to take RELIGST 391, Pedagogy, prior to candidacy
13. Paper-in-Field—During the third year, under the supervision of their advisers, students prepare a paper suitable for submission to an academic journal in their field. The paper is read and approved by at least two faculty members in the department.
14. Teaching Internship—At least one teaching internship under the supervision of faculty members is undertaken at a time negotiated with the Graduate Director. Students receive academic credit for the required internship, which is a project of academic training and not of employment.
15. Qualifying Examination—To qualify for writing a dissertation, the student must pass a comprehensive examination in the chosen field and the area of specialization, typically during the first quarter of their fourth year. The student must complete the second language requirement before taking the qualifying examination. The qualifying examination is conducted by a committee of at least three faculty members of the department, one of whom is the adviser. Non-departmental faculty may be included.
16. Dissertation—The dissertation contributes to the humanistic study of religion and is written under the direction of the candidate's dissertation adviser and at least two other members of the Academic Council. The University Oral examination is a defense of the completed dissertation.
 - i. Dissertation Proposal—Candidates submit their dissertation proposal in consultation with their advisers. It is read by a committee of at least three faculty, of whom one is the adviser (as chair) and the two others are members of the Academic Council. Non-departmental faculty may be included.
 - j. Dissertation Committee—The dissertation committee may be formed after acceptance of the dissertation proposal. It is composed of the principal adviser and at least two other member of the Academic Council. Non-departmental and non-Stanford faculty may serve as readers when approved by the Graduate Director.
17. University Oral Examination—This examination, required by the University of Ph.D. students, is a defense of the completed dissertation. The composition of the examination committee is set by University regulation: five or more faculty, normally all of whom are members of the Academic Council, one of who must be outside the department to serve as chair of the committee. Normally, the examining committee includes all qualified members of the dissertation committee.

PH.D. IN RELIGIOUS STUDIES AND HUMANITIES

Religious Studies participates in the Graduate Program in Humanities leading to the Ph.D. in Religious Studies and Humanities, described in the "Interdisciplinary Studies in Humanities" section of this bulletin.

PH.D. MINOR IN RELIGIOUS STUDIES

Candidates for the Ph.D. in other departments may select a Ph.D. minor in Religious Studies.

Requirements—The minor requires at least 24 units in Religious Studies at the 200 level or above. Four of the 24 units should be in RELIGST 304A,B, Theories and Methods.

Required Courses for the Minor—RELIGST 304A or B. Theories and Methods

Optional Courses for the Minor—

The student should choose any of the courses offered in the department at the 200 level or above, for the equivalent of at least 24 units. Other courses can be chosen in consultation with the Graduate Director.

RELIGST 159A. Religion and Performance in South Asia
(Same as RELIGST 359A.) What happens when religion is viewed through the lens of performance? Texts become dramas, songs, recitations, oral commentaries, dances, movies, and political appropriations. Beliefs become embodied enactments; doctrine puts on a costume and indulges in role play. Approaches to performance theory through religious enactments such as ritual, prayer, festival, drama, music, and film. Most examples from S. Asian religions; students may undertake research projects into other cultures and traditions. GER:DB-Hum

4 units, Spr (Hess, L)

RELIGST 167. Medieval Religious Philosophy
(Same as PHIL 101.) Focus is on God, world, and words. A pervasive assumption about the structure of the world, that it reflected the categories of God's mind and emerged from an act of divine speech, gave impetus to the interest in the nature of language and its relation to the world. Scripture served as one kind of divine communication to human beings, and The Book of the World as another. The problem of universals, the question of how words relate to God, epistemology, theories of reference, and semiotics. Readings from Augustine, Anselm, Aquinas, Scotus, Ockham. GER:DB-Hum

RELIGST 172. Sex, Body, and Gender in Medieval Religion
Anxiety about sex and the body increased markedly during the early years of Christianity, while the doctrine of the Incarnation put the human body at the center of religious concern. Ideals of virginity, chastity, ascetic self-denial of necessities like food, sleep, and freedom from pain were central to lay and clerical piety. The religious theory and practice associated with questions about sex, body, and gender in the Middle Ages as constructed in literature, mythology, ritual, mystic, and monastic texts. GER:DB-Hum, EC-Gender

4 units, Spr (Gelber, H)

RELIGST 174. Martyrdom in the Ancient World

RELIGST 176. Religious Diversity: Theoretical and Practical Issues
What does it mean for a religion to be true? If one religion is true, what about the truth of other religious possibilities? How, and why, should religious traditions be compared? Readings address tolerance and pluralism, relativism, comparative theory, and new religious virtues. GER:DB-Hum

4 units, Win (Rapp, J)

RELIGST 183. The Death of God: Between Hegel and Marx
The radical transformations in Western notions of God between the death of Hegel and the birth of historical materialism, arguing that questions about theism and atheism, humanism, and history formulated in the period 1831-50 are still pertinent today. Texts from Hegel, the young Hegelians, Feuerbach, and Marx on issues of God, history, and the social dimensions of human nature. GER:DB-Hum

4 units, Win (Sheehan, T)

RELIGST 185. Prophetic Voices of Social Critique
Judges, Samuel, Amos, and Isaiah depict and question power, strong leaders who inevitably fail, the societal inequities and corruption inevitable in prosperity, and the interplay between prophet as representative of God and the human king. How these texts succeed in their scrutiny of human power and societal arrangements through attention to narrative artistry and poetic force, and condemnation of injustice. Includes service-learning component in conjunction with the Haas Center. GER:DB-Hum
